BIOPHYSICAL SOCIETY ANNOUNCES NEWLY ELECTED OFFICERS

Bethesda, MD — The 7,500-member Biophysical Society is pleased to announce the result of its 2006 elections.

Joseph J. Falke of the University of Colorado, Boulder, was elected President-elect of the Biophysical Society. He will assume the office of president-elect at the 2006 Annual Meeting in Salt Lake City, Utah, and begin his term as President during the 2007 meeting in Baltimore, Maryland.

The following Society members were elected to serve three-year terms on the Biophysical Society Council, beginning at the 2005 Annual Meeting:

- Ana Maria Gomez, CNRS INSERM;
- Steven Gross, University of California, Irvine;
- Dorothee Kern, Brandeis University;
- Jennifer Lippincott-Schwartz, NICHD, National Institutes of Health;
- Rajini Rao, Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine;
- Lynne Regan, Yale University;
- Gregory Reinhart, Texas A&M University; and
- David Piston, Vanderbilt University.

The Biophysical Society, founded in 1956, is a professional, scientific society established to encourage development and dissemination of knowledge in biophysics. The Society promotes growth in this expanding field through its annual meeting, monthly journal, and committee and outreach activities. Its members are located throughout the U.S. and the world, where they teach and conduct research in colleges, universities, laboratories, government agencies, and industry.
