Biophysical Society

Minority Biophysicists Travel Award Application

Deadline: October 3, 2010

The Biophysical Society has made limited travel support available for minority students in the field of biophysics to attend the 2010 Biophysical Society Annual Meeting. Each award will be made to assist in travel and lodging expenses for the Annual Meeting. Awards will not exceed $1000. Selection of awardees will be based on scientific merit. All applicants must be a US citizen or a Permanent Resident of the US (verification of citizenship/residency is required).

Participants must submit a completed application form including all required documents. Applications must include the following materials:

1. Completed application form.
2. Copy of the abstract submitted for presentation at the Annual Meeting.
3. A written paragraph outlining the implications of your research and identifying the potential benefits you hope to receive from attendance at the Annual Meeting for your planned research careers.
4. A letter of recommendation, on departmental letterhead, from mentor, advisor, or professor.

Complete application form on next page.

Email completed application form and required materials to society@biophysics.org.

Please note: Because this is a travel award, awardees must be present at the Annual Meeting in order to receive their awards. Awards are presented at the Annual Meeting.
